I have got an simple yet useful idea to be used usually when chatting about code (e.g. here in the forum, or with colleague etc...)

The new TheIDE

Copy position Alt+U

function simply copies the current filename (in host independent form) and line onto clipboard. The idea is that you can then simple paste it to the message like this:

ide/idetool.cpp 108

Now the reader of your message can copy it to clipboard and then in TheIDE invoke

Goto clipboard position Alt+Y

and see the referenced code easily.
